Quakerbridge Radiology Receives Breast MRI ACR Accreditation

Mercerville, NJ – December 15, 2010

Quakerbridge Radiology Associates in Mercerville, NJ has been designated a Center of Excellence by the American College of Radiology which has recently been awarded a three-year term of re-accreditation in Breast MRI as the result of a recent review by the American College of Radiology (ACR). MRI of the breast offers valuable information about many breast conditions that may not be obtained by other imaging modalities, such as mammography or ultrasound.

Quakerbridge Radiology is one of three accredited facilities in the state of New Jersey and the first in central New Jersey area to have earned this prestigious distinction.

The ACR gold seal of accreditation represents the highest level of image quality and patient safety. It is awarded only to facilities meeting ACR Practice Guidelines and Technical Standards after a peer-review evaluation by board-certified physicians and medical physicists who are experts in the field. The process is completely voluntary.

What does ACR accreditation mean? It means that Quakerbridge Radiology Associates has voluntarily gone through a rigorous review process to ensure that nationally-accepted standards of care are met; that our personnel is well qualified to perform, interpret and administer patient imaging; and that our equipment is state-of-the-art and exceeds quality assurance and safety guidelines.
